Greetings from the Chair

Dear alumni, students, faculty, and friends,

April 2016

Greetings and best wishes to all. We have had a year with many highlights, but also some struggles. Most recently, we have received news that a settlement has been reached between the CSU faculty union and administration that will result in the first meaningful faculty pay raises in roughly a decade. Although our faculty members are incredibly dedicated and self-sacrificing, the decline in tenure-track positions and real faculty pay has left us strained to provide the quality education that our students deserve. We hope that this new agreement will put us back on a positive course.

Through it all, our students, staff, and faculty have accomplished many great things, and our alumni have continued to make us proud. In the pages that follow, you will read about these achievements. They include various awards; student and faculty research and scholarly activities; Model United Nations and Moot Court honors and activities; guest speakers; student association events and activities; community outreach; and internships. All the while, our alumni have succeeded in a wide range of careers that demonstrate the value of a political science degree. I am grateful to be part of this impressive department and university, and thank all of you for your contributions. Please stay in touch and share with us your activities and accomplishments!

With warm regards,
Teresa Wright, Chair

Political Science Student Association (PSSA)

From Professor Edgar Kaskla, faculty advisor for the PSSA…

After some reorganization in fall 2015, the PSSA has again resumed normal operations in spring 2016. Moreover, PSSA is enthusiastic about doing even more come fall 2016 given that this is an election year, and the primary season already has seen more than its share of surprises and shocks. We have held meetings every other week on Wednesdays at 5 pm, and expect to follow a similar schedule for next year. PSSA is a great venue to meet other students, to talk about topics beyond what might get covered in classes, and to just plain “hang out.” As everyone knows, CSULB is mostly a commuter school, so any time that we can do something beyond getting annoyed sitting in rush hour traffic is a good thing!

PSSA has served as a foundation for community organizing and social activism in the Long Beach area. Many of our students through the years have volunteered for a variety of causes in Long Beach. CSULB is part of Long Beach—not separate from it—and our students do have a role to play in local affairs. This has been a consistent theme among all our PSSA leaders throughout the years that I have had the privilege to serve as the academic advisor.

For more information on PSSA, find us on Facebook, csulbPSSA. The current president is Kylie Shahar.

Political Science Graduate Student Association (PSGSA)

This year, the Political Science Graduate Student Association (PSGSA) has been very fortunate to have had a series of successful events. Our Expert Hour and Speaker Series, where speakers discuss current events in their field of expertise and present their projects, featured Dr. Nathan Gonzalez. Dr. Gonzalez discussed his research gathered in the field on his recent trip to the Middle East, on the self-proclaimed Islamic State (ISIS). Dr. Gonzalez provided a big-picture analysis of how the fight against ISIS is linked to America’s broader policy shift in the Middle East, which includes improving relations with the Islamic State. Also, the PSGSA hosted a screening of the new documentary on climate change, “This Changes Everything,” followed by a discussion led by Dr. Edgar Kaskla on the climate movement and where we might be headed with regard to this global issue.

The PSGSA also worked with various student groups on campus, such as the PSSA and the College of Liberal Arts Student Council (CLASC) on some of their events. To name a few, the PSGSA was invited to speak with members of the PSSA about our experience in the CSULB MA program. In fall 2014, the PSGSA collaborated with POSC undergraduate majors and Economics students in a prestigious nationwide competition. PSGSA also has a weekly newsletter, which shares various on- and off-campus events, job/career opportunities, academic scholarships, fellowships, and competitions. And in between our events and class assignments, we all just have a drink and hang out!

Finally, the PSGSA officers (Amanda Mendoza, President; Spencer Lindsay, Vice-President; Alex Reyes, Treasurer; and Andrew Gomez, Secretary) could not thank the Department of Political Science enough for all of the support and generosity that have been so instrumental in the success of our events and our experience in the program.

Transfer Mentoring Program

In fall 2015, Dr. Alfredo Carlos developed and launched a new transfer student mentoring program in political science, aimed at assisting transfer students in making the most of their educational opportunities at CSULB while also graduating on schedule. Under Dr. Carlos’ leadership, the mentoring program organized three highly successful events, including a transfer student orientation and mixer, a transfer advising workshop, and a graduate school workshop.
Washington, D.C. Mentoring Program

In its third year, the Washington Mentoring Program, which provides help to current Political Science majors who intend to seek policy careers in Washington D.C. after graduation, has accepted two new students: Daisy Gallardo, who will be graduating this year, and Tanner DiPietro, who will be graduating next year. They will be assigned Mentors from among our Washington alumni who will help transition them to the Washington scene and work with them as they pursue their career interests.

Gallardo and DiPietro will be joining four other Political Science students who have been admitted into the Mentoring Program since its inception: Harout (Harry) Bakchajian (BA 2014), Vanessa de la Rosa (BA 2014), Serafin Rodarte (BA 2015), and Karla Galvan (BA 2016).

Current junior- and senior-level Political Science majors interested in a career in the Washington bureaucracy, or in one of the groups represented in Washington that interacts with the bureaucracy, are encouraged to apply to participate in the Washington Mentoring Program. Application forms are available online: http://www.cla.csulb.edu/departments/polisci/washington-mentoring-program. Course work in public policy is highly recommended for those wishing to pursue a Washington policy career, and is a criterion for admission into the Mentoring Program. For more information, please contact Mary Caputi or Barry Steiner in the Political Science Department.

The Department would like to thank our Washington Mentors for assisting current students who aim at Washington policy careers. Current coordinators of the Mentoring Program in the D.C. area are Lindsey Canaley (BA 2006), Jon Nakagawa (BA 1995), and Bernard Togia (BA 1986). Philip Partain, who received both his BA and MA degrees in Political Science from CSULB, and whose background and visit to campus this spring are detailed elsewhere in this Newsletter, participates as a Mentor in this program.

Post-Graduation Guidance

On Oct. 13, 2015, alumni Jon Nakagawa (BA 1995), who has worked for many years in the federal government in Washington, DC, and most recently as a Special Agent in the U.S. Department of Homeland Security, spoke to political science students about his work experiences, and offered students advice regarding how to make the most of their college experience, and how to translate that into a post-graduation career, particularly in government.

On April 20, 2016, alumni Vahid Niayesh (MA 2011), presently a doctoral student at UC Irvine, joined political science faculty member Darin Dewitt on a panel on “Getting a PhD in Political Science: Tips and Realities.” Niayesh and Dewitt discussed what to look for and expect in a PhD program, how to apply, and how to best navigate the process.

Scholarly Intersections Events

Free Speech and Safe Spaces

On Nov. 3, 2016, the departments of Political Science, Journalism, and Communications co-sponsored an event on "free speech and safe spaces: what should be allowed and protected on college campuses?" The event featured two well-known figures: Conor Friedersdorf of the Atlantic, and Joe Cohn of the Foundation for Individual Rights in Education (FIRE), as well as a response from Rich Archbold, editor of the Press Telegram.
Intersectionality in the Classroom

In spring 2016, political science faculty member Amy Cabrera Rasmussen and women’s gender and sexuality studies faculty member Shira Tarrant directed a faculty learning community and workshop series exploring the ways in which faculty may explain and utilize difficult concepts such as intersectionality, privilege, and marginalization in the classroom, and how to integrate into classroom lessons the intersectional social justice campaigns (and the activists and advocates who are building them) from our Long Beach and greater Los Angeles communities.

Visit by Alumni Philip Partain

Co-sponsored by the department of Political Science, the department of History, and the program in International Studies, on March 8-9, 2016 Philip Partain (BA 1967; MA 1974)—a member of our Mentoring Staff in Washington, D.C. and recently retired from the Central Intelligence Agency—returned to CSULB. The purpose was to allow him to contribute “real world” insights gained from a long career in the national intelligence field. It also permitted him to “give back” to the University from the valued experience that he received at the University more than forty years ago.

On March 8, Partain spoke to two Political Science courses taught by Prof. Roger Morton. In a Public Policy class he talked about national intelligence as an element of the executive branch of the government, discussing the purpose of national intelligence, the craft of intelligence (technology as well as scholarship), and the varying cultures of national intelligence (including covert operators, analysts, “targeteers” who bring information together and apply it, and scientific/technology experts). Among the skills necessary for a successful career in this arena, he said, were critical thinking, ability of communicate, knowing one’s audience, and listening. Later, in a Public Administration class, he spoke about the politics of life in the executive branch, based upon tensions between elected officials and the bureaucracy. He pointed out that politics ordinarily was needed to accomplish something new in the bureaucracy. In Partain’s case, this was the creation of a new intelligence discipline for “Measurement and Signatures” Intelligence (MASINT), which uses very technical scientific applications to study such subjects as arms development, narcotics, and space activities. He has been publicly commended for this achievement.

On March 9, Partain joined faculty members, Larry George, Charles Mahoney, Nathan Gonzalez, and Barry Steiner, in a panel discussion on “ISIS and American Foreign Policy.” Here, dealing with a high priority foreign policy problem, Partain’s views set him apart from other panelists and contributed to a good interchange and debate. He was more supportive of American force use against ISIS, along the lines of American government action today, than were the other panelists.

The Department thanks Philip Partain for contributing to our learning objectives, both on campus during his recent stay and in his work Mentoring recent graduates who have gone on to Washington policy careers.

Pi Sigma Alpha Honors Society and Awards Reception

At the 2015 annual Pi Sigma Alpha awards reception, honors were given to: Michelle Desrosiers (Outstanding Graduating Senior), Dilyana Valeva (Outstanding Graduate Student), Karla Galvan (Outstanding Achievement Award), Jocelyn Kuo (Edwin Roberts Scholarship), Ashley Montogomery (Robert Delorme Scholarship) and Krist Biankanja and Kevin Poush (Moot Court Achievement Award). In addition, Amanda Mendoza was named the department’s Outstanding First-Year MA Student for 2014-15. Our Pi Sigma Alpha officers for 2015-16 were: Andrew Scibetta (President), Heather Marshall (Vice President), and Vivian Dao (Secretary). The 2016 awards reception will be held on April 26. The department extends a special thanks to CSULB’s Forty-Niner Shops for their generous donations to our annual awards reception.

POSC Faculty on TV

In spring 2015, faculty member Charles Mahoney appeared on Beach TV’s “Talking Points,” discussing private military and security corporations: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=vkzmkhVOGz4

In January 2016, faculty members Charles Mahoney, Kevin Wallsten, and Jason Whitehead were panelists on a program entitled “2016 Political Gridlock: Issues and Voter Behavior,” moderated by chair Teresa Wright. The program was part of Beach TV’s “In Conversation,” series: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=kVbvpMU_Gtc
The Department has continued to benefit from the amazing work of our Administrative Support Coordinator, Amelia Marquez, who keeps the office running smoothly and efficiently, and all with great cheer, positivity, and humor. We are extremely lucky to have her. This year we also were fortunate to have a new Administrative Support Assistant come on board—Jason Francescon, who earned his BA in Theater at CSULB. Jason has been wonderful from the start, and his professionalism and terrific attitude have been much appreciated. Jason will be leaving us at the end of this academic year, as he has been offered a full scholarship and stipend to join the MFA program at the University of Missouri, Kansas City. Look for his name in lights!

In February 2016, faculty member Kevin Wallsten discussed immigration policy on Beach TV’s “Talking Points”: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Nd-iwfoTVxg

Mary Caputi (Political Theory; Ph.D., Cornell University) has been on leave from CSULB during the 2015-16 academic year to serve as the Resident Director for CSU Florence. Recent publications include two essays in Interpreting Political Theory, co-edited by Clement Fatovic and Sean Walsh, to be published by Routledge in 2017: "Feminist Interventions Into Political Theory: the Power of Supplemental Logic;" and "Deconstruction and Interpretation in Political Theory" (co-authored with Sean Walsh). Dr. Caputi also presented a paper entitled "Unintentional Truth and the Thematics of Restoration" at the Florence Biennale in October 2015, and the International Critical Theory Conference of Rome in May 2016. In July 2016 she will begin a three-year term as editor of Politics & Gender.

Alfredo Carlos (American Politics; Ph.D., University of California Irvine; MA CSULB) In fall 2015, Dr. Carlos established a new mentoring program for POSC transfer students at CSULB. Dr. Carlos also continues to serve as the faculty advisor to CSULB’s La Raza Student Association.

Christopher Dennis (American Politics; Ph.D., University of Georgia) is teaching half-time in our Faculty Early Retirement Program (FERP).

Darin Dewitt (American Politics; Ph.D., University of California, Los Angeles) recent publications include a co-authored article with Matthew Atkinson: "Celebrity Political Endorsements Matter," in Celebrity Studies. Drawing on economic forecasts, prediction markets, and campaign finance records, Dr. Dewitt contributed evidence-based insights about the unfolding presidential nomination process to the Monkey Cage at the Washington Post. His most recent contribution, "Economic forecasts suggest the presidential race should be a toss-up. So why aren't Republicans doing better?" can be found at: https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/monkeycage/wp/2016/03/07/economic-forecasts-suggest-the-presidential-race-should-be-a-toss-up-so-why-arent-republicans-doing-better/

Larry N. George (International Relations; Ph.D. Princeton University) gave a talk entitled “Deleuze and ISIS” at the conference “Deleuze and Guattari: Refrains of Freedom” in Athens, Greece in April, 2015. In March 2016, he presented a paper, “Istis’ Monstrous Double” at the annual meeting of the International Studies Association in Atlanta, GA.
Faculty Publications & Activities

He has also participated in two campus forums this year on the ISIS threat.

Cora Goldstein (Comparative Politics; Ph.D. University of Chicago)

Recent publications include: "Drones, Honor, and War," in Military Review, and "A Comparative Analysis of Cultural Control: The German Military Occupation of France (1940-1942) and The American Military Occupation of Germany (1945-1949)," forthcoming in The Journal of Military History. Her piece "Good Kill? U.S. Soldiers and the Killing of Civilians in American Film" is forthcoming in an edited volume titled, Disappearing War. Dr. Goldstein received an APSA Small Research Grant, and used it to conduct research in the National Archives, College Park, Maryland.

Liesl Haas (Comparative Politics; Ph.D. University of North Carolina)

Continues her research with Richard Haesly on the changing role of religion in American politics. She and Dr. Haesly presented two co-authored papers at the Annual International Conference on Religion in Society, in Washington DC, in March 2016. She received a sabbatical for Fall 2016 to continue fieldwork for her current project, which examines the political impact of Latino Evangelicals on Republican politics.

Richard Haesly (Comparative Politics; Ph.D. University of North Carolina)

Dr. Haesly serves as one of two Undergraduate Advisors for the department and is the President of the campus chapter of Phi Beta Kappa. His article, “Nationalism” was published in The Encyclopedia of American Political Culture. He and Liesl Haas continue their research project on the changing role of Evangelical Christians in American politics, and have submitted a co-authored article, “Welcome the Stranger: The Evangelical Challenge to Republicans on Immigration Reform,” for publication review. Dr. Haesly received a university Summer Stipend to collect data for another article, “Latino Evangelicals and the Evolution of the Evangelical Electorate.”

Edgar Kaskla (Comparative Politics; Ph.D. University of California, Irvine) serves on the editorial board of the Estonian language journal, Acta Politica, and as the faculty advisor for the Political Science Students Association (PSSA).

Charles Mahoney (International Relations; Ph.D. University of California, Los Angeles) Dr. Mahoney’s manuscript "Buyer Beware: How Market Structure Affects Contracting and Company Performance in the Private Military Industry," was accepted for publication by the journal Security Studies. In addition, Dr. Mahoney presented two papers and the annual meeting of the International Studies Association. The first paper addresses how organizations that use terrorism use bluffing in militant campaigns. The second manuscript examines how path dependence affects the behavior of private military corporations.

Larry Martinez (International Relations; Ph.D. University of Santa Barbara) taught “Political Cultures Along the Silk Road” at KIMEP University’s International Summer School in Almaty, Kazakhstan. The course incorporates a Model UN mini-conference debating cultural diversity issues in the context of Internet challenges to information sovereignty. His paper, “The Hard and Soft Law of ‘Gravity’” was presented at the International Institute of Space Colloquium in Jerusalem, as well as at a faculty research colloquium at CSULB. Martinez’s current research investigates the growing cyber-vulnerability of outer space satellite systems.

Roger Morton (American Politics; Ph.D. University of California, Irvine) is the Executive Director of the Sustainable Neighbors Network (facilitating study abroad opportunities for Senegalese students and coordinating charitable work in Senegal) and Visions Made Visible (a non-profit that coordinates charitable projects undertaken by various organizations).

Charles Noble (American Politics; Ph.D. University of California, Berkeley) is teaching half-time in our Faculty Early Retirement Program (FERP).

Amy Cabrera Rasmussen (American Politics; Ph.D., Yale University, MA and BA CSULB) continues her research examining discourse about various aspects of health policy and politics. She recently published “The discursive context of reproductive ethics” in the Oxford Handbook of Reproductive Ethics. At the March 2016 Western Political Science Association conference, she presented a paper on media and community framing of environmental health and participated in a roundtable on the APSA’s data access and research transparency policies. She continues to serve as one of the department’s undergraduate advisors and as a faculty mentor for the CSULB Partners for Success program.

Lewis Ringel (Public Law; Ph.D. University of Maryland) continues to chair the National Case Committee of the American Collegiate Moot Court Association (ACMA), and helped author the 2015-16 national case. In January 2016, Dr. Ringel directed the national Moot Court tournament, held for the first time at CSULB.

Barry Steiner (International Relations; Ph.D. Columbia University) continues work on his book project with Roman & Littlefield, on "Theory and Diplomatic Conflict Management." He prepared an invited paper, titled, "A Diplomatic Viewpoint Encounters the Galtung and Security Community Paradigms," for the annual meeting of the International Studies Association, which is to be part of this manuscript. Dr. Steiner led the department’s successful application for a CLA Scholarly Intersections Grant that

He also co-chaired the Section on Critical and Normative Political Theory for the Midwest Political Science Association in 2016.

In Memorium: Joanna Vecchiarelli Scott

Joanna Vecchiarelli Scott, a political theorist and member of the CSULB Political Science Department from 1974 to 1990, passed away on November 1, 2015, in Ann Arbor Michigan, at the age of 72. She was the first woman to receive a tenure-line appointment in the CSULB Political Science Department. At her death she was Professor of Political Science at Eastern Michigan University, where she served as Department Chair for five years.

Professor Scott received her BA from Barnard College in New York, her MA in Political Science from Columbia University, and her PhD from the University of Strathclyde, in Glasgow, Scotland. Her research focused on Hannah Arendt, a well-known German émigré and public intellectual whose work ranged from a study of St. Augustine to evaluating the trial in Jerusalem of Adolph Eichmann.

With Judith Chelius Star, she published a corrected and revised English translation of Arendt’s doctoral dissertation, Love and Saint Augustine (University of Chicago Press, 1998), which Arendt completed in the early 1930’s in Germany but later annotated and revised in light of her contemporary studies of political life. The published edition brought attention to the dissertation as a bridge in Arendt’s prolific writings, and was important in establishing Arendt’s place in American scholarship.

Professor Scott was a tireless supporter of equality for women and other minorities in the political science profession. She served on nominations committees of the American Political Science Association (APSA) which recommended the first two consecutive women APSA Presidents, Theda Skocpol and Susanne Rudolph. She was president of the APSA Women’s Caucus for Political Science (2006) and an APSA Vice President (2008-2009).

Scott also argued that the APSA needed to do more to involve the sizeable numbers of its members working in non-“Research 1” institutions. She was one of the very few representatives from BA/MA institutions to serve on the APSA Council.

Born in Fort Smith, Arkansas, she was raised in New Jersey and was already known in her high school for her feisty “Jersey attitude”. As a high school journalist, she attended the famous 1959-60 Soviet Exhibit and “Kitchen Debate” between Vice President Richard Nixon and Soviet premier Nikita Khrushchev at the New York Coliseum, and her writings about that episode and other subjects led to conflict with school administrators.

Professor Scott was married for fifty years to Doug Scott, another political scientist, and had two children.

ALUMNI CORNER

Michael Houlihan (BA 1968) was awarded CSULB’s highest alumni honor, the Distinguished Alumni Award, in 2015. The award is bestowed annually in each College by the CSULB Alumni Association. In addition to demonstrated pride and positive affinity for CSULB, awardees have achieved a record of distinction, recognition and accomplishment in their fields and a proven record of leadership and service to their communities and society at large. Houlihan and his wife, Bonnie Harvey, co-authored the New York Times bestselling business book, The Barefoot Spirit: How Hardship, Hustle, and Heart Built America’s #1 Wine Brand. The book has been selected as recommended reading in the CEO Library for CEO Forum, the C-Suite Book Club, and numerous university classes on business and entrepreneurship. It chronicles their humble beginnings from the laundry room of a rented Sonoma County farmhouse in 1986, to the board room of E&J Gallo, where they successfully sold their brand in 2005. Barefoot is now the world’s largest wine brand.

Currently, Houlihan and Harvey travel the world keynoting at universities, corporations, conferences and symposiums. In a phone call with POSC Chair Teresa Wright, Houlihan spoke with great fondness about his education at CSULB, and credited much of his success to the knowledge and skills that he honed through his POSC coursework.

The Model United Nations (MUN) program had a very eventful 2015-16 where the “real” world of international politics impinged on the “simulated” MUN world. The terrorist attacks in Paris in November that killed CSULB foreign study student Noehmi Gonzalez resulted in a last-minute cancellation of the MUN trip to the Bonn International MUN Conference, a conference we have been attending since 2003.

The Bonn delegation, though, was added to the MUN student delegates selected to represent India at the Nanyang Technological University (NTU) Model UN Conference in Singapore in February. With 8 CSULB delegates, we were among the biggest teams from outside Asia participating in the conference. Former CSULB political science student Karen Pitakdumrongkit, now Assistant Professor at the S. Rajaratnam School of International Studies at NTU, briefed our delegation about NTU international education opportunities and Singapore’s key role in a very contested region of Southeast Asia.

The MUN club sent a delegation to the March National MUN Conference at the UN Headquarters in New York City. Representing the Caribbean nation of Dominica, the delegation’s performance was recognized with an Outstanding Delegation Award, quite an honor from the world’s largest MUN conference (picture to right).

The CSULB MUN program also extended its assistance to local high schools and community colleges at the March Long Beach International MUN Conference (pictured below), a one-day training conference held on our campus to prepare delegates for the multi-day conferences they would be attending, in our case, the MUN of the Far West, held in San Francisco in April.

Last summer, Dr. Larry Martinez, the MUN faculty adviser, incorporated a MUN simulation as part of the Political Culture of the Silk Road course he taught at our partner university in Almaty, Kazakhstan. KIMEP University’s International Summer School’s course had students representing the five republics of Central Asia at a simulated negotiation over Internet policies that are perceived as challenging cultural values in countries attempting to promote economic and societal development in Central Asia.
Led by director Lewis Ringel, CSULB's moot court team had a very successful season -- especially when one considers that, after graduating 12 of the 14 members of its 2014-15 team, 2015-16 was a rebuilding season. The season began well as Justin Adofina and Julieta Hernandez won both the CA Classic and the CSULB Spring Classic. Mindy Vo and Diego Duarte finished as runners up in the CA Classic. In the fall, Adofina and Hernandez won the CSULB Fall Classic and the Holy Cross Classic and finished 3rd in the University of North Texas School of Law Invitational Tournament. Vo and Myles Cheney finished 2nd in the Holy Cross Classic. Adofina and Hernandez were the runners up in the 2015 Upper Midwestern Regional. Both won top orator awards. Cheney and Sarah Geesaman (who attends Patrick Henry College), and Vo and Duarte finished 5th and 6th at the 2015 Western Regional. Cheney was named the best orator. All three of these teams earned bids to nationals and all three advanced to elimination rounds. Cheney and Geesaman advanced to the Sweet Sixteen and finished 9th in the nation in oral advocacy. CSULB won two national written brief awards: Zsofia Slovak and Ciara Loftstrom advanced to the semi-finals of the national petitioner written brief contest, while Adofina and Hernandez came in 5th in the national respondent written brief contest.
