Because the Department of Religious Studies at California State University, Long Beach is committed to building a more diverse faculty, staff, and student body as it responds to the changing population and educational needs of California and the nation, we seek applicants from those who have experience teaching and mentoring in ways that effectively address individuals from historically underrepresented backgrounds.

Duties:

Graduate assistants will help departmental faculty administer and coordinate the instruction in a variety of courses, e.g., American Religion Diversity (R/ST 302). Performance of duties required may include several of the following: grading exams and papers, proctoring exams, working with small groups in class, record keeping and copying, keeping office hours to assist students with course materials, setting-up audio visual and BeachBoard, assisting with ADA accommodations such as notetaking for disabled students, and library research.

GAs must maintain continual enrollment in a CSULB graduate program (minimum of six units per semester).

Required Documentation:

- Letter of application addressing qualifications
- Tentative course schedule
- Three references
- SC-1 form required of finalists.

Application Deadline:

Review of applications will begin August 14, 2015. Application, required documentation, and/or requests for information should be addressed to:
